

About us

Creatovators is a Social Enterprise with a passionate belief that people on the autistic spectrum have a lot to offer. By providing help and support to them, their families, professionals, companies and organisations we are seeing significant success stories as a result of our service-user led, "can do" approach.

Our services, which have grown from a unique blend of training, personal experience and user's input, include LEGO®-based Therapy, a monthly playscheme for the whole family, training sessions and professional services such as consultations.

COVID guidelines adhered to

Pre/Post Diagnostic Sessions

"You are not alone!"

For parents and carers of people on the Autistic Spectrum

Pre/Post Diagnostic Sessions for Parents & Carers of People on the Autistic Spectrum

We at Creatovators know how difficult the time before and after diagnosis of an Autism Spectrum Condition can be. The emotions involved, meetings with different professionals and everything surrounding the whole process can be time consuming and traumatic. Having walked this path and with our training and expertise we will come together to listen to each other and provide information in 2 evening sessions.

On Tuesday 18th January the focus will be on Autism. Dr David Simmons a lecturer in Glasgow University and a parent to someone on the spectrum, will be presenting on Autism, what the diagnosis means, and sensory issues and asking his son, Ed Simmons, for his lived experience. (Ed is on the Autistic Spectrum)

On Tuesday 25th January the focus will be on support. Charlene Tait, Depute CEO from Scottish Autism will be presenting on the support Scottish Autism can give, June Grindley (MSc in Autism) and a parent to someone on the spectrum will be presenting on pathways to support in East Dunbartonshire and Carla Faulkner and Maya Devlin will present on their lived experience as a Mum and daughter who received a diagnosis when she was 12.

On both evenings there will be a panel for questions, made up of the people presenting on the night and Susanna Henderson, an autistic student in her final year at Glasgow University.

There will be local support organisations present to give information and answer questions.
