

SENSORY ISSUES OF AUTISTIC ADULTS WHO HAVE INTELLECTUAL DISABILITIES

INVITATION TO TAKE PART IN RESEARCH

Researchers at the Tizard Centre, University of Kent (Jill Bradshaw, Jane Pringle and Damian Milton) are looking at the sensory issues and experiences of autistic adults who have intellectual disabilities.

If you support an autistic adult who has intellectual disabilities either as a paid supporter or as a family-carer, we would like to invite you to take part in our study.

https://kentsspssr.eu.qualtrics.com/jfe/form/SV_3DbHtUI9wBLvKux

Firstly, you will be asked 29 multiple-choice questions relating to a familiar environment in which the person lives or where they spend some of their time (e.g. day services). You will then be asked 37 multiple-choice questions about the sensory needs of the person you support.

We are not asking you to include any identifiable information, however, at the end of the survey, you will have an option to contact the research team if you would like the opportunity to access a series of Webinars, relating to Sensory Sensitivity and environments, which are presented by Dr Damian Milton.

This research has ethical approval from the Tizard Ethics Committee.
Please direct your queries to: J.M.Pringle@kent.ac.uk